

Occupational Health and Safety Policy

OUR COMMITMENT:

Qualtest Laboratory (NSW) Pty Ltd is committed to the health, safety, and well-being of its employees, contractors, clients, visitors and general public in all places in which we work.

Safety is an integral part of our business. Qualtest will make every reasonable effort to take positive action to eliminate behaviour, practices and hazards that could cause harm to any personnel.

OUR OBJECTIVES:

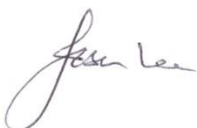

Qualtest recognises its moral and legal responsibilities under Occupational Health and Safety (OH&S) legislation to provide a safe and healthy work environment. This commitment means we will:

- Provide safety leadership and commitment at all levels of the organisation.
- Develop, implement and maintain an OH&S Management System that complies with all relevant OH&S legislation, statutory and regulatory obligations, industry standards and codes of practice.
- Communicate with all personnel in fostering a culture that promotes safe behaviour and safety awareness, including individual and shared responsibilities.
- Consult, seek contributions and encourage effective employee participation.
- Provide training, consultation and initiatives to enable all personnel to work safely.
- Ensure that our places of work, vehicles, tools, plant and equipment are safe and fit for purpose.
- Identify, assess and proactively manage hazards and risks to an acceptable level.
- Report, record and investigate all incidents, and implement corrective actions as appropriate.
- Establish measurable health and safety objectives and targets to continually improve performance.
- Implement safe work systems and provide a workplace where all workers can expect to return home safe and well.
- Support our people to maintain a healthy work/life balance and be fit for work.

PERFORMANCE AND OUTCOMES:

Qualtest is committed to achieving the above objectives through consultation and cooperation between management and employees. It is our expectation that everyone will participate in, take responsibility for, and support our safety objectives. Implementing our objectives will ensure that our work is conducted in the safest practical way while fulfilling our legal obligations. We strive to develop a “culture” of safe behaviour in our people. In this way everyone can expect to go home without incident or injury.

We will actively monitor and review our organisation’s performance to ensure that we succeed in meeting our Occupational Health and Safety objectives.

Jason Lee
Director / Principal
15 January 2016

